“Be an agent
of change.”

Jani Beauchamp

Having worked in the cleaning product manufacturing and distribution industry for the agri-food sector, as well as in the manufacturing and distribution of histological fixatives and solvents for the hospital sector, Jani has in-depth knowledge of her field and is always tracking new developments in these fast-changing industries.

A dynamic, sympathetic and charismatic person, Jani Beauchamp was born into an entrepreneurial family where human values were always at the centre of discussions. This is undoubtedly why she maintains close ties with her clients.

Training her teams and surrounding herself with qualified partners is her fundamental goal.

Jani wears many hats as a tech savvy expert in supervising, planning, sales and business development. Now the co-owner of three companies, she is skilled at forming business relationships that are both friendly and professional, that stimulate progress and that propel all parties forward.

Forward-looking, Jani is deft at creating a sense of belonging wherever she sets foot. People that she meets, even abroad, have the good fortune of feeling like a member of the family.

Passionate and socially conscious, she has helped further the environmental cause by developing a 100% Montreal-made recycling program for containers and solvents.

With an educational background in food processing and technology, Jani is involved in a number of committees, institutions and associations, including the Institut de technologie agroalimentaire. She also sits on the Board of Directors for the Conseil des industriels laitiers du Québec and the Association du Développement et l'Innovation en Chimie du Québec, to name just a few. Her dedication to her field has earned her the “essential industry partner award” given by the Association des microbrasseries du Québec.
